Microsoft will ignore this one and you will be back in court again. How many companies will have to lose value or go under because of Microsoft's practices before they are really punished? 10 years ago there were 3 companies producing DOS, multiple other OS's that could be used on a PC and plenty of applications for all OS's. Now, you just about have to use Windows in order to buy applications for use. Let's get back to multiple OS vendors, application vendors making their product for those OS's and a thriving tech industry, not one that is failing and is dependent on what Microsoft wants and steals
